

50 Get-to-Know-You Questions for Your D-Groups

These “Get-to-Know-You” questions are for you and your group to become more acquainted with one another. They are “scratching the surface” type questions that will be great for the beginning of a typical D-Group Study. These questions will get the most usage if they’re used as icebreakers or discussion starters. They’ll also help you begin to build a sense of community, within your D-Group, by prompting students to share their thoughts and desires.
